

Win-Win Resolutions

Developing Skills for a Peaceful Tomorrow

Win-Win Resolutions,

a non-profit (501c3) organization, strives to reduce violence in schools, corporations and communities through unique interactive conflict resolution workshops.

These innovative programs incorporate the dramatic arts to give students real ownership in resolving everyday problems, while also teaching them the needed communication tools to keep differences in their schools and neighborhoods from escalating to violent outcomes.

Win-Win's successful C.R.E.W. (Conflict Resolution Enrichment Workshops) programs are individually designed to reach both elementary and middle/high school students. Utilizing puppets, original scripts and "role playing" exercises, each workshop completely engages the students in the process.

Win-Win also offers Peer Mediation and Parent/Teacher workshops that further develop the foundation for safe and all-inclusive environments both at school and at home.

"These programs allow students to develop communication skills and empowers them to create solutions to real-life problems."

*- Phyllis Martin,
Past Principal,
Dudley High School*

www.WinWinResolutions.org

Front

Win-Win Resolutions Rack Card
Round 2 • March 5, 2009

Supporters of Win-Win Resolutions include: Yvonne Johnson, Mayor, City of Greensboro; Rebecca Smothers, Mayor, City of High Point; Tim Bellamy, Greensboro Police Chief; Jim Fealy, High Point Police Chief; BJ Barnes, Guilford County Sheriff and Amos Quick, Vice Chair of Guilford County School Board.

Win-Win Resolutions

was founded by Executive Director, Debra Vigliano (debra@winwinresolutions.org), in January 2001, and to date has reached over 30,000 students.

Win-Win has also developed an exciting corporate model – perfect for Inter-Personal Communication, Diversity Training, Team Building and Leadership Coaching. The programs can be tailored to meet any business needs.

Violent incidences, student code violations and suspensions are growing at an alarming rate. More than ever, students need the tools to handle problems in a peaceful way. Win-Win's programs are proven to improve these areas.

Schools that have hosted Win-Win's successful programs have seen up to a 46% reduction in student code violations. These impressive outcomes have been published in The National Journal of School Violence and Win-Win was the only NC conflict resolution organization asked to present at the first Inter-American Conflict Resolution Conference in Ohio.

While Win-Win has been fortunate to receive financial backing from both Corporations and Foundations, we rely on the community for support. To learn about our Sponsorship packages or how to make a tax-deductible "Friends of Win-Win" contribution, please contact Executive Director, Debra Vigliano, (debra@winwinresolutions.org).

For more information, contact us at: 336-230-1232
122 N. Elm St. • Suite 516 • Greensboro, NC 27401

www.WinWinResolutions.org

Back

Win-Win Resolutions Rack Card
Round 2 • March 5, 2009